JCI Warden Earns Certified Corrections Executive Honor From American Correctional Association

TOWSON, MD (August 29, 2008)---Jessup Correctional Institution Warden John S. Wolfe has earned the Certified Corrections Executive (CCE) designation from the American Correctional Association (ACA).

Warden Wolfe is a 30-year veteran of Maryland's Division of Correction. He began his career as a correctional officer at the former Maryland Penitentiary in 1978, and held progressively bigger jobs, culminating with his installation as Warden of Maryland Correctional Adjustment Center ("Supermax") earlier this year. Mr. Wolfe was named Warden of the maximum-security Jessup Correctional Institution (JCI) this summer.

Certified Corrections Executive designation is not easily earned. Applicants must first possess a long and distinguished career in corrections, before completing a comprehensive examination that tests their knowledge as a corrections executive. CCE designation means that a corrections executive has proven leadership skills in everything from human resources to managing change, and has used innovative approaches to solving the often significant challenges inherent in corrections work.

The American Correctional Association is the leading professional organization dedicated to advancing the overall level of professionalism in the field of corrections.

Congratulations to Warden Wolfe on his achievement of becoming an ACA Certified Corrections Executive.
